AABRAR's Core Competencies / Technical Expertise

1. Introduction to AABRAR:

Afghan Amputee Bicyclists for Rehabilitation and Recreation (AABRAR) is an Afghan non-governmental, non-political and not for profit organization dedicated to the social, civic and economic integration of persons with disabilities and other vulnerable groups as well as to the social and economic development of the civil society in Afghanistan. Established in 1992, AABRAR's first official service endeavor was a bicycle training program, the first such training offered in Afghanistan to help persons with disabilities enhance their mobility and ride bicycles to and from their work places which had a two-fold effect of improving their health conditions and saving them transportation costs to help them support their despondent families.

Observing desperate hopes and increasing problems of persons with disabilities due to loss of precious parts of their bodies, AABRAR decided to extend its scope of work and include other rehabilitation programs that would better help in healing the wounds of persons with disabilities and their families. AABRAR therefore started consulting national and international donor agencies as well as the government of Afghanistan for starting new initiatives to better help persons with disabilities and their families. At this stage, AABRAR with the help of its respected donor agencies was able to start physical rehabilitation, physiotherapy and vocational training programs that would help people with disabilities learn and practice vocations and by that means earn bread for their families. With almost 3 decades of war and ethnic conflicts, Afghanistan is assumed to have left with almost a million persons with different kinds of physical impairments and in most cases the disabled person is the bread earner to the family. The vocational training programs helped in preparing disabled persons to learn and practice different kinds of vocations such as bicycle repair, carpentry, cobbler, tailoring, embroidery, football and volleyball making etc. that helped them run their own small businesses on daily basis in the local bazaars and earn and support their families. Thousands of persons with disabilities who have received such trainings from AABRAR are happily living their lives with their families while practicing their earned skills. With success and achieving fruitful results from the above-mentioned activities, AABRAR expanded its services to other provinces of Afghanistan to help those in need and by the end of 2016, AABRAR had active presence in 24 provinces of Afghanistan, implementing different kinds of programs for the people of Afghanistan.

Since the expansion, AABRAR's scope of work has greatly enhanced and presently AABRAR offers services in a variety of areas that include but are not limited to civic education and democratization programs and trainings, peace building trainings, conflict resolution trainings, institutional capacity building workshops, literacy and numeracy programs, political awareness raising programs, HIV/AIDS awareness raising programs, physiotherapy and health care, bicycle training, vocational trainings in 30 different vocations, ramps construction, honey bee-keeping trainings, university entrance test preparation trainings, local government capacity development trainings, CSOs capacity development trainings, advocacy, gender equality trainings, capacity development trainings of CSOs in the policy reforms of our country, various sporting activities that include activities for both able persons and disabled persons and a series of other activities.

17.13 Access to Justice and Good Governance

Access to justice is more than improving an individual's access to courts or guaranteeing legal representation. Access to justice is defined as the ability of people to seek and obtain a remedy through formal or informal institutions of justice for grievances in compliance with human rights standards. There is no access to justice where citizens (especially marginalized groups) fear the system, see it as alien, and do not access it; where the justice system is financially inaccessible; where individuals have no lawyers; where they do not have information or knowledge of rights; or where there is a weak justice system. Access to justice involves normative legal protection, legal awareness, legal aid and counsel, adjudication, enforcement, and civil society oversight. Access to justice supports sustainable peace by affording the population a more attractive alternative to violence in resolving personal and political disputes.

Taking the importance of accessing to justice, AABRAR also worked with different donor agencies in order make people understand for accessing easy justice rather than disappointment from the systems. In April 2013, AABRAR has implemented a one year project with the name of "youth legal education program" in the province of Nangarhar. The main theme of this project was to write a curriculum book over the accessing of legal justice and good governance. The legal book was written by famous and professional writers of Afghanistan. Once the book was finalized then it was taught out by 39 youth volunteers in 14 district of Nangarhar to youth and other individuals from the communities. The book has very comprehensive information and knowledge regarding access to justice and good governance. People from different communities very highly appreciated the book and demanded from AABRAR that it should be printed out more and spread out in other districts and provinces of Afghanistan as well.

17.14 Organizational Development

AABRAR is in continuous efforts to increase the capacity of its staff to be able to successfully handle its projects. Working with different donor agencies, AABRAR has to comply with the rules, regulations and requirements of all the respected donor agencies and it is therefore essential to enable its staff to be able to successfully fulfill all the requirements.

For this purpose, AABRAR plans the following set of activities:

1. Provision of capacity development trainings to AABRAR's staff in center and in regional and local offices in the areas of office management, financial management, human resources management, Usage of QuickBooks, report and proposal writing, fund raising, communication, coordination as well as other training programs that depends on the type of program/project our staff is involved in.
2. Establishing a shared drive system through which the regional offices will be able to get the required info, formats etc. in seconds time that will save time and increase work efficiency.
3. Modifying and redesigning AABRAR's website to include data on every project that is undertaken with its outcomes.
4. Expansion of programs and services to other part of the country to cover those provinces where AABRAR has not done anything as yet.

10. Enhance coordination between projects to avoid any kind of duplication.
11. To strengthen the capacity development initiatives across AABRAR and its registered local organizations to enable them successfully perform their duties and help in the satisfaction of the civil society.

Coordination

Coordination within an organization is essentially critical to that organization's success as good communication and coordination is highly important for an organization to increase productivity, simplify processes and cut down on the time it takes to complete its activities. Although AABRAR's activities are pretty well coordinated but it still needs to improve its coordination with the regional offices as well as with the stakeholders and donor agencies to improve the quality of its services and avoid wastage of time. As a part of the coordination strategy for 2012-2014, AABRAR will improve its coordination with the donor agencies in terms of increasing the number of meetings between the two parties as well as sending regular updates to the donor agencies on the implementation of its projects.

In regard to enhancing the internal coordination, AABRAR has planned to improve department coordination with weekly short meetings during which each department will be debriefed on its past week activities and asked for its next week plan. The project management team will be advised to meet more frequently to share the successes, challenges and learned lessons of the projects with each other. AABRAR's financial management team will also be advised to increase the number of group meetings to be able to better coordinate its activities and speed up their work while increasing the quality of their work and services.

AABRAR's board of directors, Executive Director and other important positions on the organizational hierarchy will improve its coordination through regular updates and reports bottom to top in the hierarchy.

AABRAR's coordination with the local communities and groups within the local communities such as local government staff, women and youth councils, disability unions, school and university teachers, civil society organizations, disabled persons organizations, community development councils, tribal councils, nomad councils, elders of villages, mullahs and Ullamas, religious leaders, students, sportsmen etc. has always been good but during these three years, AABRAR will excel to further improve its coordination with these bodies to simplify its work, increase the quality of work and serve them better.

19. Monitoring and Evaluation

At AABRAR, there are two main reasons behind carrying out high quality monitoring and evaluation (M&E) of our project activities. First, we believe that M&E provides information that can be used to guide and improve our current as well as future projects, activities and planning interventions for future. Second, we believe that continuous monitoring and evaluation of project activities not only ensures the quality implementation of activities and reaching out to the beneficiaries but also M&E data can be used to demonstrate the effectiveness of capacity building interventions to donors looking for evidence of the benefits of their investments to support our activities. Monitoring at AABRAR occurs at different levels. The Monitoring and evaluation department is solely responsible to look after all project activities and interventions of AABRAR. Project managers, Executive Director and the Assistant Executive Director on regular basis pay visits to project sites to monitor the progress of activities. In our interventions, project goals, objectives, and activities are measured through program evaluations, through surveys from community members, by examining beneficiaries of our projects, through conducting different tests and techniques such that viva and practical test are taken from beneficiaries of the projects. Evaluations are done in every training, data and feedback received are used to improve existing services, develop, revise, or create new policies or procedures to meet the needs of the projects.

In most of the projects, the project core staffs are responsible for overseeing the performance measures as indicated in the project log frame and on the project/program timeline, and provide feedback and statistical data to M&E Manager. The M&E department and the Executive Director of AABRAR also on regular basis assess the project implementation to check if the activities are done in comparison with the initially developed working plan. Project Manager and community member reports of activities will be linked to the outputs defined initially by the project. Project activities and financial records are checked by the Director of AABRAR on regular basis to ensure the complete provision of activities in a cost effective way. The monitoring systems ensure that any issues arising will be identified and addressed immediately, and in turn will be fed into the design and delivery of the next training workshop. There are also debrief sessions with each presenter and the core team responsible for delivering the training workshop at the end of each day to discuss any issues which have arisen and make any necessary changes for the following day.

In consultation with AABRAR, monitoring visits are also undertaken by donor agencies to monitor project performance, utilization of funds and performance through reports sent by AABRAR. The monitoring visits enable donor agencies to assess the progress of the project and to provide necessary support to AABRAR.

20. Sustainability

AABRAR believes that achieving sustainability is an ongoing process and not a single step or initiative. To AABRAR, each Step towards achieving sustainability is unique and we ensure through all our programs to constantly build sustainable initiatives so that people in the local communities and civil society organizations can get the benefits from them for a longer period of time. AABRAR's two decades of experience has broaden its outlook and has helped it to build trustworthy acquaintances with others including stakeholders, CSOs, Local Shuras, donor agencies, men/women/disable unions and for sure public/local communities. Most of AABRAR's programs focus on civil societies, local communities and different organizations working therein. AABRAR through its projects is keen to help the civil society organization build their capacity and expand their coverage to cover vulnerable people.

AABRAR monitoring and evaluation team in coordination with the project management team develop and set sustainability monitoring indicators for the all the interventions through which the impacts of our interventions are assessed from time to time to ensure that the community is benefiting which can't be done without having a proper planning for sustainability and monitoring and evaluation. AABRAR develops candid indicators to assess the impact of each and every activity and communicate it to the donor agency in a timely manner.

AABRAR through its community mobilizers stay in contact with the beneficiaries in outer provinces to see if they are making any use of the earned skills and whether or not their activities are helpful to the wider communities. In cases when we find out that our beneficiaries are having trouble with finding employment and using their earned skills, AABRAR's labor markets officers take steps ahead to get in touch with the market and various small and medium size businesses to find suitable employment opportunities for our beneficiaries.

AABRAR's projects produce high quality results and bear everlasting impact on beneficiaries as well as implementing body (AABRAR). Clearly, from project design we assure that it will have significant impacts including, widening of AABRAR strategic planning, vision, mission and capacity of AABRAR. AABRAR, as a local, not for profit organization in Afghanistan, does require on-going funding to remain viable and to ensure that its services' benefits can be sustained for a longer period. Without the support of our donor organizations, it will be almost impossible to implement AABRAR's strategic plan and achieve our desired goals and changes in the Afghans' lives and in our country at large.
